

A multiple integrated circuit (IC) die assembly includes a base IC die and secondary IC dice mounted on a surface of the base IC die. A set of protruding contacts formed on the surface of the base IC die and extending beyond the secondary IC dice link the surface of the base IC die to a printed circuit board (PCB) substrate with the secondary IC die residing between the base IC die and the PCB substrate.